Those Stories.

We have given in the DAILY TRANS-CRIPT some notice of certain stories which we supposed were being circulated for the amusement of children, or for men, perhaps, since "men are but children of a larger growth," but we are surprised to find that these stories are really taken in earnest by some who have listened to them. To come at the matter squarely, we may as well say that the stories refer to various things which it is reported that Mr. Barlow will do if he is elected to the Senate. It might seem to one who examines matters critically that it is strange no one, not even the authors of the stories, knew about these things until just at this time. For instance, if Mr. Barlow was intending to get the corporate limits of our village extended so as to take in of our village extended so as to take in Parsonsville and Mr. Holyoke's farm, it did last year, to some. At the present way to the full support of the ticket, let they cheered the ex-President as he town bonded (which means bound down think that those bold, defiant, energetic, persons the full support of the ticket, let they cheered the ex-President as he town bonded (which means bound down think that those bold, defiant, energetic, persons the full support of the ticket, let they cheered the ex-President as he town bonded (which means bound down think that those bold, defiant, energetic, persons the full support of the ticket, let they cheered the ex-President as he town bonded (which means bound down think that those bold, defiant, energetic, persons the full support of the ticket, let they cheered the ex-President as he town bonded (which means bound down think that those bold, defiant, energetic, persons the full support of the ticket, let the ex-President as he town bonded (which means bound down think that those bold, defiant, energetic, persons the full support of the ticket, let the ex-President as he town bonded (which means bound down think that those bold, defiant, energetic, persons the full support of the ticket, let the ex-President as he town bonded (which means bound down the full support of the ticket, let the ex-President as he town bonded (which means bound down the full support of the ticket, let the ex-President as he town bonded (which means bound down the full support of the ticket, let the ex-President as he town bonded (which means bound down the full support of the ticket, let the ex-President as he town bonded (which means bound down the full support of the ticket, let the ex-President as he town bonded (which means bound down the full support of the ticket, let the ex-President as he town bonded (which means bound down the full support of the ticket, let the ex-President as he town bonded (which means bound down the full support of the ticket, let the ex-President as he town bonded (appears curious that no one ever heard time it is easy for any one to see that we them satisfy their political consciences of it until within about a week, and also that not a soul in town desires, or has expressed a desire for any such thing. The story about his intending to have water brought from Fairfield pond, at large or small expense, by his influence voice to induce Mr. Soule to run. He patriotic service in exposing the split in the Legislature, is of the same piece was the most convenient stool-pigeon ticket business, with its corrupting inof election eering numbug. If any such to be had, to familiarize the people with fluence upon the ballot box. These thing was desired by the village, or by the idea of bolting. He has served his tricks may be very funny for the "split Mr. Barlow as an officer of the corporation, the village would not go on digging wells all over town to supply us with water, nor would the last annual corporation meeting have voted against the Fairfield project emphatically, and in favor of the one now being carried out. This humbug story is transparent.

The story that he is going to give his influence in favor of having the county taxed to build a new Court House here is also untrue. Not a town in the county desires any such action at this time, and Mr. Barlow is not in favor of disreregarding the wishes of his constituents here and in the whole county, and for nothing at all. Mr. Barlow does not propose, we believe, to "run" Franklin County, and no reliable man who knows him will believe so of him. He has been found, after repeated trial, a safe as well as capable legislator; and those fearful gentlemen who suppose his election will confer upon him such wonderful powers must be over credulous. Besides, they flatter him too much when they suppose, as they seem to by their stories, that he has such unlimited control over the County and Legislature. They make him out s smart and able a man that it really convinces some people that he ought, for that reason, to be elected, trusting to the restraints of common sense, and some few impossibilities, to hold him in his regular orbit as a legislator.

The story also that Mr. Barlow contemplates using his influence to change the course of the water which runs through Parsonsville, so as to bring the same into St. Albans is a kind of cold water fable that has no foundation except in imaginations predisposed to hydrophobia. Why should he want the give, and this fact may be reasonably brook, if he is going to have Fairfield baye, or whose friends have political and sharpelessly lays the blame upon pond if he is after the brook? Mr. Soule may therefore experience the fine pleasure set forth in Hudibras:

"Tis said the pleasure is as great. Of being cheated as to cheat.'

It seems that some who really went into the movement for Mr. Soule out of special regard for him, are quite disgusted with this "Punic faith" of their leaders; and the prediction we made that probably not 300 votes would be cast for him outside of St. Albans is quite likely to be verified.

But can those who have been led to act against Mr. Barlow by these deserters of both the regular nominee and Mr. Soule's cause, continue to have faith in such tricksters?
